Wandering From Whence We Came, What Do We Leave Behind?

As Humphrey Littleton (had he known of the Good News magazine), might once have said:

'So as the contents of the Good News magazine of destiny, try to burst out of the constraints of its 24 pages of delight; and as the printers of repentance, struggle to keep it within its 24 pages or less. Now is all done, all that remains, is give thanks to the gratefully relieved'.

And so:

Many thanks to all Good News contributors; writers, sifters and wranglers of content, proof readers, printers and distributors.

All those that collaborate across time and travels, in all sorts of ways to produce and deliver all of the wonderful resources into which we dip and find treasures to share.

Most of all, thank You, for reading this magazine. Now you want to share it with someone.

Yes you do...

Far away amidst waving palms, looking out across the beautiful myriad colour tropical sea and sky, I was in a place that looked like paradise. It was hot, I stood on the beach and reflected upon my visit to the local school that afternoon. The sun beat down; that days fresh catch of fish was drying on the ground to my left.

I was conscious of the security staff with their firearms never more than a few steps away from me; and the apprehensive locals who watch me closely.

I thought of the desperate Mission Statement painted on the school wall, shining and reflecting the transient hues of the sea and sky:

"Our mission is to keep as many children as possible in school each day, for as long as possible, so that they are fed and not raped on the beach and drowned in the sea."

Ubi caritas et amor...

Tears ran down my face. The men stood around could see no reason why the Ferengi [foreigner] was crying... What, I wonder, did I leave behind?

Think on; some of you dear readers, believe me, live in paradise.

Yes you do...

Spring 2022

North West Northants Pastorate

I mentioned at the beginning of the last issue; "Time and travels make some things seem long ago and distant". But, just because something happened or was written down long ago does not in itself make it obsolete, impractical or untrue.

My grandmother's (by now world famous) marrow chutney recipe was written down long ago. But it is still true, not obsolete (at least in my kitchen) and still works today.

Western Culture has among its foundations the ancient knowledge, ideas and writings of the likes of Homer, Plato and Aristotle et al.

Many festivals have among

"...and repentance and forgiveness of sins will be preached in his name to all nations, beginning at Jerusalem. You are witnesses of these things."

(Luke 24: 47-48 NIV)

their roots some practices of pagan origin; Easter not least of all, bringing together celebrations of springtime and fertility which in themselves are of course, worth celebrating.

Image: from Charcoal Gospel by Neil Thorogood © Neil Thorogood/United Reformed Church 2016.

But for Christians, there's more... The special thing about Easter for Christians? He [Jesus] told them, "This is what is written: The Christ will suffer and rise from the dead on the third day"...

Tearfund Lent Appeal

Michael Bond asked you to consider this; Poverty Isn't Part of Gods Plan. You Are.

When the coronavirus pandemic struck Rwanda, it pushed many people further into poverty. Take Laetitia's community...

Laetitia is a farmer in Rwanda, where life has been tough. She struggled to earn an income and provide for her children, as did many in her community. But then Laetitia heard about a self-help group – set up by Tearfund's local church partner. 'Before I joined the group, life was tough. As a woman these days, when you don't have a source of income, life gets hard.'

These groups bring together people from across the community to read the Bible, support each other and save money for the future. Being part of the group also gave Laetitia the skills and the confidence to start her own small business raising chickens. 'We were able to sell eggs and get money to meet basic household needs and buy food for our children.' shares Laetitia.

By donating to our Lent Appeal you will be helping more people around the world, like Laetitia, lift themselves out of poverty. And stay there.

Things were going well. But then the pandemic hit and there was no market for the eggs. Laetitia's business – and those of others in her community – came to a standstill. But self-help groups like Laetitia's mean that when times are difficult, people have the support they need. This pandemic has taught us that we need each other – and that we all need a safety net.

'The advantage we had over others as group members [was] at least we managed to share what we had in our treasury to feed our families during this terrible period,' shares Laetitia. 'We used that money to prepare for the lockdown . 'We didn't suffer like most people in our community who did not belong to self-help groups. The utmost importance of this group to me is love. We sit and discuss and learn about love and the word of God. We find ways to support one another and at the end of the day, you find yourself benefitting the way you didn't before.'

During lockdown, Laetitia's group spent time making handicrafts and even won a competition, giving them a cash prize to invest in their community. They are now working to build their businesses back up. Through joining together, they can beat poverty. 'With God's support, I will one day get the needed money to start again,' says Laetitia. 'God does miracles. If God enables me to get some money, I will immediately start-over again with the poultry business. It's the business that allows me to make profit, and which is easy for me at my age.'

A Late Night Reflection: And The Page Fell Open...

Coming Together, Drifting Apart and Moving On

---

Here I am again, late at night, I pick up the Charcoal Gospel booklet once more and start to look, the page falls open, I start to read; sometimes enough is said.

Meditation

Mary,
Love and faithfulness have brought you here.
You come to honour the dead,
to do what gentleness and respectfulness require.
Your spices will stave off the corruption of his corpse, for a while.
'Mary.'
A million tellings must not blind us to the miracle of this moment.
You come expecting death;
and life greets you.
Life breaks the tomb,
crashes the stone,
hurtles into history.
Christ is risen!

Editorial

Whose Name is This?

Hello,

Some amazing things happen in our churches, so don't be frightened, come on in!

Church is not a members club, so everyone can come along and be welcomed, familiar or stranger. You have a place waiting here. Yes you do...

It is wonderful that we are getting back on course with supportive activities and events, both within our churches and in our wider communities.

These important communal activities, which might include coffee mornings, social and charitable events, even beetle drives, charitable as they might be; do not to entirely define the Church.

Might they in fact be seen as the coming together of people, serving with love and mutual respect, to support the Spiritual work of the Church; as sometimes expressed in individual Church mission statements?

Like many of you, I have come to realise, church buildings (important facilities that they are) are just that, buildings.

We, are the Church, the people. It's stating the obvious, I know that now, but I am a bit slow sometimes... It is the people who express charity and love.

This brings to mind the words of the famous hymn often sung by choirs; "Ubi caritas et amor, Deus ibi est".

That is; "Where there is charity and love, there is God"; frequently sung on a Maundy Thursday.

A reminder that after darkness and loss there is new birth and indeed resurrection.

His Name is Jesus.

But then you know that don't you?

Yes you do...

Andrew.

A Message for All

From Rev. Liz Adams

Dear Friends,

It's been a long, hard winter, hasn't it? In fact, it feels like it's been winter for two years – a bit like Narnia! I feel like I've done funeral after funeral – both here, and in my last parishes. And mainly for people I knew or have begun to get to know. And everyone I know seems to have experienced the same. Several deaths or illnesses or other difficulties. We're all feeling exhausted from Covid, and its restrictions and drawbacks, and the world is not a happy place for other reasons too.

Thankfully, spring is springing. As I write, I've felt the heat of the sun despite the cold wind, the snowdrops are poking up out of the ground, and I know the daffodils and crocuses are on their way. I know, because it happens every year, without fail. God has set these things in place, I believe, to give us hope in the dark times.

We know spring will come and summer will follow. The days will last for longer and the nights will be shorter. At the same time as all the deaths, we have heard of new life – new babies being born to children and grandchildren of our church and community, new babies being baptised in our churches, and new friends as groups start up again.

I'm writing this on Candlemas – the day the church celebrates Jesus as the Light of the World, being presented in the temple as a baby, 40 days after his birth.

It's the official end of Christmas, and as a church, we begin to look now towards Lent, and Jesus' death and Resurrection. Another example of sadness, turning to joy; of death into life; and of despair into hope. God has done this with us his people time and time again, throughout the Bible, through Jesus, and on into the church communities over generations in every nation.

Sometimes churches go through a time of quiet, of struggle, of loss. But they are always renewed, always resurrected, always grow again. The church has continued for generations in this place, it's been steeped in prayer and it's exciting to look back and see what God has done in the past, and we look forward with anticipation to see what God is going to do next in this place - both in terms of numbers but even more importantly, in our own lives.

Thinking About the Lectionary

The Seasons of a Church Year

The seasons move on! From Lent through Easter and on toward Pentecost; but what did all these things mean and for whom? What do they mean for us, here today?

For many, these words are archaic, even arcane (just like those words). But, let us briefly consider Lent; no, it's not what the bank did with our savings, it simply refers to the time of year, when the days lengthen. In other words, spring.

Lent (spring) has long been associated with fasting, abstaining perhaps from meat on certain days but (ironically later) consuming grain, for example in the form of bread. (Choose your period of history and denomination).

In later Christian times, some have it that this might have been to resist temptation; remembering the temptation of Christ in the desert for forty days and nights before he began his ministry. (Refusing to turn stones into bread).

But enough of bread and stones, after all there are plenty of people in the world that would, and do, offer us stones for bread even today; without the merest hint of irony...

Again, perhaps we should remember; these seasons, traditions and rituals of the Church; these activities and events, are not the Church.

Again for some people they might however, be the activities and events that serve to support the Spiritual work of the Church. Seasons that give structure and variety; a variety that it might be hoped covers the whole cycle of the year.

This Lent season serves us well if it reminds us that; "It is written: man shall not live by bread alone, but by every word that proceeds out of the mouth of God". Matthew 4:4, NIV.

Easter and Pentecost? Oh yes, with the renowned, lightening speed of the Church, I will come back to these, perhaps next year, or the year after...

Prayers

From Rev. Michael Bond

For Prayer

This quarter we are asked to think of, remember and pray for:

- Jesus said, "Love as I have loved you". Do we need a vision of God rebuking us for the people we dislike without knowing the facts!?
- How should we spiritually care for people?
- A person said, "I fast, but I find it difficult to be quiet before the Lord". Whether we fast or not, we should be quiet before the Lord sometime in Lent; what should that mean for us?

Give thanks. Always give thanks for an answered prayer.

Seen on a poster while on holiday in Spain: 9 out of 10 worries do not materialise.

Spiritual work of the Church along with its prayer reaches out
Far beyond its buildings, seeping into a wider community and world
A human reflection of the power of the Holy Spirit
We cant help but try to reach out
To shine back however faintly
The life giving love
Take hold the hand of God
Be brought out into the shinning Light

The story behind the hymn

O Love That Will Not Let Me Go — Contributed by Norman Chandler

I am quite sure that the whole work was completed in five minutes and equally that it never received at my hands any retouching or correction. I have no natural gift of rhythm. All the other verses I have ever written are manufactured articles; this came like a dayspring from on high."

The four verses begin with the key words Love, Light, Joy, and Cross. These are names attributed to Christ.

Love, is a haven for a "weary soul" and is as deep as the "ocean"

Light, our "flickering torch" is strengthened by the "sunshine's blaze" of Christ, the light of the world.

Joy, a joy that seeks for us "through pain" like a rainbow promise of hope following rain.

Cross, following suffering the "blossoms red" are formed that lead to the birth of new life.

This hymn was chosen for inclusion at the request of a member. If you would like to know about your favourite hymns origins please contact the editor.

Let us remember of our hallowed buildings and practices:

"...if these holy places, things, and days cease to remind us, if they obliterate our awareness that all ground is holy and every bush (could we but perceive it) a Burning Bush, then the hallows begin to do us harm."

C. S. Lewis, Letters to Malcolm; Chiefly on Prayer (Geoffrey Bles, 1964)

The story behind the hymn

You know the one, yes you do...

O Love that will not let me go,
I rest my weary soul in thee;
I give thee back the life I owe,
That in thine ocean depths its flow
May richer, fuller be.

George Matheson was the eldest of 8 children, a brilliant student at school; however at Glasgow University he began to go blind and was advised that there was no cure. Upon hearing the diagnosis his fiancé decided that she could not marry a blind man and broke off the engagement.

With the help of his sister, who incidentally learned Greek, Latin and Hebrew, he was a brilliant student and she continued to assist with his pastoral responsibilities in parishes in Glasgow and Edinburgh. He continued his theological studies obtaining a Doctorate of Divinity and a LL.D. (Doctor of Laws).

Twenty years after graduation on the eve of his sister's wedding, his shock rejection resurfaced. His own account stated that; "My hymn was composed in the manse of Innelan (which is on the Firth of Clyde) on the evening of the 6 th of June 1882 ... Something happened to me, which was known only to myself, and which caused me the most severe mental suffering.

The hymn was the fruit of that suffering. It was the quickest bit of work I ever did in my life. I had the impression rather of having it dictated to me by some inward voice than of working it out myself.

I remind you, some beetles do look like ants; like the 'Anthicidae' in fact, sometimes called 'flower beetles'. This particular example, for it is indeed one of these, seems not to like the look of those (disproportionately small) flowers opposite as on this occasion it (I am unsure of its gender) has turned its back!

No Beetles will be harmed during this event (although some fish might be)
